

This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

Usage guidelines

Google is proud to partner with libraries to digitize public domain materials and make them widely accessible. Public domain books belong to the public and we are merely their custodians. Nevertheless, this work is expensive, so in order to keep providing this resource, we have taken steps to prevent abuse by commercial parties, including placing technical restrictions on automated querying.

We also ask that you:

+ Make non-commercial use of the files We designed Google Book Search for use by individuals, and we request that you use these files for personal, non-commercial purposes.

+ Refrain from automated querying Do not send automated queries of any sort to Google's system: If you are conducting research on machine translation, optical character recognition or other areas where access to a large amount of text is helpful, please contact us. We encourage the use of public domain materials for these purposes and may be able to help.

+ Maintain attribution The Google "watermark" you see on each file is essential for informing people about this project and helping them find additional materials through Google Book Search. Please do not remove it.

+ Keep it legal Whatever your use, remember that you are responsible for ensuring that what you are doing is legal. Do not assume that just because we believe a book is in the public domain for users in the United States, that the work is also in the public domain for users in other countries. Whether a book is still in copyright varies from country to country, and we can't offer guidance on whether any specific use of any specific book is allowed. Please do not assume that a book's appearance in Google Book Search means it can be used in any manner anywhere in the world. Copyright infringement liability can be quite severe.

About Google Book Search

Google's mission is to organize the world's information and to make it universally accessible and useful. Google Book Search helps readers discover the world's books while helping authors and publishers reach new audiences. PREFACE

The chief aim of the Register board for 1921–22 has been early publication. The editors realize that the book is of little real use, unless published early in the college year, and therefore everything has been done to make it available as soon as possible. Realizing also that in past years many careless errors have crept in, particular pains have been taken to see that this year's volume be thoroughly accurate.

Of the innovations of this season, the most important is the series of articles on phases of University life by men intimately connected with the college. We trust that these will serve to explain some matters of interest not generally known.

The Register is extremely grateful to all who have assisted in the preparatory work. Among those who have been particularly helpful, are Mr. George W. Cram, Mr. Edward Gay, Mr. Kenneth B. Murdock, Miss Mullen, Mr. Richard Chute, and Mr. Richard R. Higgins. The Harvard Crimson and the Cosmos Press have at all times co-operated in hastening publication of the book.

RICHARD AMMI CUTTER,
President.

THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE UNIVERSITY

BY KENNETH B. MURDOCK '16

Assistant Dean of Harvard College

The final authority in the government of Harvard is that body known in official literature as "The President and Fellows." The President, and the Corporation of five members, together with the Treasurer, hold the property of the University and manage its affairs according to the provisions of a charter not substantially altered from that which was granted in 1650. The Corporation is self-perpetuating and in its hands lies the power to appoint all professors and officers, although in some cases its action must have the approval of a second governing body known as the Board of Overseers.

The Board of Overseers, unlike the Corporation, is not a small group of men electing their own successors, but a body of thirty chosen by degree holders of Harvard, and expressing in its government the sentiment of graduates and of the outside community in general. Their approval is required for most of the important votes and appointments of the Corporation, and by this means, as well as by the establishment of many Visiting Committees to investigate various departments of the University, they are able to exert much influence in the government of Harvard, and form an invaluable guide for its policy in that they bring to the Corporation representative outside opinions.

The President, as the active administrative head of the University organization, serves as a link between the Overseers and the Corporation, and the various schools and departments in Harvard. In the Medical School, the Law School, the College, the Graduate School, and each of the other divisions of the University there is an organization responsible to the President and through him to the two Governing Boards we have mentioned above. Space allows us to discuss the system of government only as it exists in the College, but the organizations of the various schools are sufficiently alike to make what is said here of the College applicable in the main to the other departments of the University.

The governing body for the College in its daily affairs in matters of instruction, discipline, and policy, so far as these do not affect the policy of the University as a whole, is the Faculty. This is made up of the senior teaching officers of the College, and usually has about two hundred members. Naturally on account of its size, and the fact that meetings can be held only at intervals, the details of its daily work must be delegated to sub-committees. We have, for example, the Committee on Admission, which has authority from the Faculty to deal with all matters concerning admission of students, the Committee on the Choice of Electives administering the Faculty's rules in regard to selection of courses, the Committee on Scholarships to decide matters in regard to financial aid for students, and the Administrative Board, which carries out the wishes of the Faculty in all matters affecting the discipline of undergraduates, and serves as a link between them and the Faculty. These committees, in turn, delegate part of their authority to individual officers, in order that the work may be more promptly and effectively done, and so we have a Secretary of the Committee on the Choice of Electives, the active agent of that committee of the Faculty, and the Dean serving as the Chairman of the Administrative Board and its representative in every day College affairs. He is helped by the Assistant Deans, each of whom has charge of certain undergraduates and is responsible to them for the presentation of their requests to the Administrative Board, and also to the Faculty, as represented by the Board, for insuring the observance by students of the College Regulations. One of the Assistant Deans is also the Secretary and active member of the Committee on Scholarships, so that the Dean's office, subject to the rules established for it, has for one of its duties the awarding of financial aid to students. In connection with this the many loan funds available for undergraduates are assigned by the Assistant Deans, so that not only discipline and requests from students, but also applications for financial aid, are handled in the Dean's office, so that broadly speaking all questions involving the relation of the student with the government of the University, except in matters of payment of bills and other purely financial relations, are referred to the Dean or Assistant Deans.

In this way the Dean's office deals with individual students; but in order to take care of the many cases involving not only isolated undergraduates, but also clubs and student organizations of all kinds, as well as groups in dormitories, there is a special officer for the whole University known as the Regent, who directs the proctors in University buildings, keeps in touch with the clubs and other organizations, and exercises over their activities such supervision as may seem necessary.

In purely financial matters the undergraduate comes in contact with the Bursar, who is again an officer serving not only the College, but the whole University. He pays out and receives all money due from or to students. He works in close touch with the Comptroller, a general University officer with supervision over all expenditures, who is responsible to "The President and Fellows." The third financial officer of the University is the Treasurer, in whose hands are Harvard's property and funds. He has charge of an income bearing endowment of between forty and fifty million dollars.

In its essentials then, we see that the system provides that the undergraduate shall deal directly with certain University officers who represent for him the Faculty to which they are responsible. The Faculty is headed by its Dean and by the President, and he, with the Corporation, and subject to the consent of the Overseers, governs the University. When we remember that Harvard is in the position of a business turning over many millions of dollars a year, the organization seems simple in view of the work it is able to accomplish, and whatever side lines of system there may be which seem unconnected with the broad scheme as outlined here, find their explanation nine times out of ten in the fact that a University deals not only with definite business problems, but also with more delicate human and educational questions requiring a peculiarly adaptable machinery for their solution. The government of Harvard as we know it represents something evolved from the provisions of a charter granted nearly three hundred years ago, modified by experience, and by the changing and developing ideas of the graduate body. Its flexibility and adaptability has made its long life possible, and its combination of concentration of power in the hands of a few men who can exercise it effectively, together with the regulation of the use of this power by a body elected by graduates, seems to assure in the future the continuance of Harvard's intelligent service of the world.

PART II

THE GRADUATE SCHOOLS

Much of the material in this part is published by the courtesy of the Harvard Federation of Territorial Clubs, being taken from their book entitled "Harvard of To-Day."

Excellent opportunities for advanced study at Harvard are afforded by the various graduate schools. Generally speaking, an A.B. or S.B. degree or sufficient specialized preparation is requisite for entrance, and the regular term of study varies with the different schools from one to four years. In planning a college course it is well to look ahead, and it may be that the following information from representatives of the several schools will be helpful. The University publishes separate pamphlets describing the schools, which may be obtained on application.

GRADUATE SCHOOL OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

The Graduate School of Arts and Sciences includes those men working for the degrees of A.M. and Ph.D. and also many college graduates pursuing advanced non-professional studies without reference to the attainment of a degree. The total membership in 1920–21 is 568, distributed principally among the departments of Ancient Languages, Modern Languages, History, Government and Economics, Philosophy, Mathematics, Biology, Chemistry, and Physics. These men come from all parts of this country, and to some extent from foreign countries; indeed, the newcomer at the school is usually struck by the diversity of the men in their studies and in their origins. It is easy to see what chances for exchange of ideas lie in the bringing together of so many kinds of talents, opinions, prejudices, and temperaments.

The great advantage the School offers — and one which can hardly be matched in this country — is the close relationship between student and professor. At Harvard the advanced student in almost any department has the personal supervision, even companionship, of men of the first rank in their subjects. Less important, but hardly less, are the library facilities. I refer not only to the great extent and value of the collections in Harvard and Boston libraries, but to the readiness of access allowed the advanced student. At Harvard the stacks are thrown open to him; in Boston the courtesies are hardly less extensive; and there are several special libraries, devoted to books on many single or related subjects, where he is always welcomed.

The University is drawing together the social life of the graduate students by devoting Conant Hall, on Oxford Street, to men in the Graduate Schools. The plan has been highly successful, for Conant, which accommodates about one hundred men, is in great demand. It has a splendid, large common room, used by the Hall as a lounge and reading room, and by various scholastic clubs as a meeting place. This common room, and indeed Conant Hall itself, constitutes the center of the social life of the School.

A word about the relation of the Graduate School to the College and its activities. The School, to be sure, is a separate entity. At the same time, the members of the College and School attend the same lecture halls, dine at the same dining halls, and thus come in contact constantly. The graduate student, as well as the undergraduate, is entitled to all the social and athletic privileges afforded by the University.

THE LAW SCHOOL

The Harvard Law School is the oldest of the existing law schools in the country. It has attained its present position among law schools by the high professional standing of its graduates and by the invention of a method of legal instruction called the "case system." Before the administration of Dean Langdell, eminent jurists had taught the students by lectures supplemented by the study of legal treatises. This system did not give the training and facility in the actual methods of the best legal practice. A practising lawyer presents his case with citation of other cases, and his final authority and test of law lie largely in court decisions. Dean Langdell therefore introduced a system of instruction whereby the student was trained to use as original authorities the published decisions of courts. The success of the "case system" has caused it to spread through the law schools of the country.

This method of teaching law requires a large and fully equipped library. The Harvard Law School has such a library. Indeed, Professor Dicey of Oxford has pronounced it "the most perfect collection of legal records in the English-speaking world."

Lawyers bred at Harvard have proved to be so sound and successful in practice that the School has increased rapidly in size. During the current year, there are enrolled in the school nine hundred and forty-six men. These men represent the best types of college graduate, and the average ability is extraordinarily high. Such a student body is splendidly equipped to make the most of the study of the law by means of the case system.

The fact that a man who has made a good record at the Harvard Law School has a certain prestige when he seeks a position after graduation, may partly account for the keen competition for the leading places in the class. Unlike most undergraduate scholastic competitions, the struggle is not confined to a few of the more studiously inclined.

Every man is given an opportunity to join a law club and almost all avail themselves of the chance. A club is composed of eight men from each class. The members of the first-year class argue cases before an upper classman who presides as chief justice. Later in the course a competition is held between the clubs, known as the Ames Competition, for which prizes are given. The law clubs have proved valuable in teaching men how to search the authorities, and present an argument effectively.

The Harvard Law Review, which has gained an enviable reputation as a sound legal journal, elects to its editorial board twelve or more men from each class at the beginning of the second year, on the basis of ability shown in the first year's work. Only legal ability and character gain a man standing among his fellows, and where men of every type and from nearly every state are working together with a common serious purpose, it is easy to make acquaintances and to form lasting friendships. Amid such surroundings the life of the school could not be other than attractive for the man who enjoys legal work.

THE DIVINITY SCHOOL

The preparation of men for the Christian ministry has been one of the functions of Harvard since the foundation of the College in 1636 by the colonists who "dreaded to leave an illiterate ministry to our churches when our present ministers shall lie in the dust." Harvard College provided a large number of ministers for the New England churches during the 17th and 18th centuries, and the oldest professorship in the University is the Hollis Professorship of Divinity (1721). In 1816 the Divinity School was definitely differentiated from the college as a distinctly professional school. It now offers a three years' course in preparation for the degree of Bachelor of Theology, for men, already Bachelors of Arts, going into the active ministry, and opportunities for advanced study leading to the degrees of Master of Theology and Doctor of Theology, intended especially for men who expect to teach theology.

The School has never required any denominational test, its constitution, which dates from 1816, prescribing that "every encouragement shall be given to the serious, impartial, and unbiased investigation of Christian truth, and no assent to the peculiarities of any denomination of Christians shall be required of either instructors or students." The administration of the School is carefully conformed to this principle. Various denominations are represented in its Faculty and among its students.

Divinity Hall, a charming old ivy-covered brick building on Divinity Avenue opposite the eastern front of the University Museum, is the dormitory for the School. It dates from 1826 and contains the Common Room, and the Chapel, which is one of the most interesting historical rooms in the University. Most of the lectures in the School are given in the Divinity Library, adjoining Divinity Hall.

The handsome stone buildings of Andover Theological Seminary lie a little to the east of the Divinity School, facing on Francis Avenue. The two schools hold joint services of worship, and arrange their courses on a basis of co-operation rather than of competition. Andover Seminary has been, since 1908, closely affiliated with the Divinity School. More recent and looser affiliations have also been made with the Episcopal Theological School, Boston University School of Theology, and the Newton Theological Institution. The Andover-Harvard Theological Library is a very rich collection, and the combined resources of the Divinity School and the affiliated institutions offer opportunities for theological education equalled in but few other places.

THE MEDICAL SCHOOL

The Harvard Medical School has had a long and honorable history. Beginning in a little building about the size of a small country school-house, it has several times outgrown its quarters till in 1906 it was moved to its present magnificent situation. The school now has an equipment that is not equalled by any medical school in this country. The five gray marble structures connected by hallways and porches make a group which every passerby admires, and which fills with pride the hearts of those who work within them.

The admission requirements are, generally speaking, a degree in Arts or Science from an approved college or scientific school, or two years of undergraduate work during which a rank in the first third of the class has been maintained, with a reading knowledge of French or German and certain work in scientific subjects.

It is, however, the men who direct the work, rather than the magnificence of the equipment, that makes a school great. A glance at the list of the Faculty of Medicine will show the names of men of national and international reputation who are working in these laboratories and directing the students who are under them. They are men of inspiring character, and are always ready to help their students. We are proud of our equipment, but we are prouder still of the staff of men who direct the School's work and who have made notable contributions to the advancement of Medical Science.

The hospitals and institutions which are grouped about the Harvard Medical School or are near at hand in Boston afford unsurpassed facilities for clinical instruction. These institutions contain over two thousand patients whose cases are available for teaching purposes.

Aside from the regular assigned work, there are many opportunities in spare hours for the student who is ambitious to do special research under the immediate personal direction and supervision of the Professors of the various departments. This kind of work is intensely interesting, and its value to the student cannot be overestimated.

The Medical School is not lacking in social life. The Students' Association, to which every student of the School belongs, holds two meetings a year at which some distinguished person speaks. The meeting at the beginning of the academic year is a reception to the new men. Each class has an occasional smoker and an annual banquet, which are always enjoyed. Late in the spring the School grants a holiday, and all the classes join in a picnic down Boston harbor.

THE DENTAL SCHOOL

The Harvard Dental School is established in Boston and was instituted by vote of the President and Fellows of Harvard College, July 17, 1867. The first session of the School opened on the first Wednesday in November, 1867, and continued until the following March. The first examination of candidates for the degree of the School was held March 6, 1869.

Instruction in this School is given throughout the academic year, by lectures, recitations, clinical teaching, and practical exercises, uniformly distributed. The programme of instruction is progressive, and occupies four years.

Biology, anatomy, histology, physiology, physiological and dental chemistry, general pathology, oral anatomy, histology (normal and pathological), and bacteriology are pursued in the Harvard Medical School.

The degree of Doctor of Dental Medicine is given, on recommendation by the Faculty of Medicine, on the completion of the four years' course. The degree is given in two grades.

It is the object of the Faculty to present a complete course of instruction in the theory and practice of Dentistry; and for this purpose a well-appointed laboratory and infirmary are provided. Clinical instruction is given by the professors and other instructors; and each day patients are assigned to the students, ensuring to all the opportunity of operating at the chair, and becoming trained by actual practice in all the operations demanded of the dentist.

Students have access to the hospitals of the city, and are assigned to service in the Massachusetts General Hospital.

GRADUATE SCHOOL OF BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION

The Graduate School of Business Administration aims to give its students familiarity with general business facts and principles which may be the foundation of a broad business point of view, and to give them the practice in analyzing and dealing with business problems. The course is ordinarily of two years duration and includes training in dealing with business facts and problems, in reaching definite conclusions with reference to such problems, and in presenting conclusions both orally and in writing.

The School also furnishes instruction intended to help its graduates adjust themselves in business. Instruction directed to this end deals with the relation of the individual to his personal and business surroundings and opportunities and with the relation of the business man to current social and public problems.

Beginning with the year 1921–22, the tuition fee of the School will be four hundred dollars, this amount being the estimated cost of instruction so far as this cost is not met by income from endowment. The Faculty believes that the business training given by the School is an investment and that the current cost not met by the small endowment, should be paid by the student trained.

One of the advantages offered by the School which should be of particular value to its graduates in their business life is the opportunity for association with men of varied collegiate training coming from a wide range of localities. The School is in a peculiar sense a national institution both in its contacts with business men and in the sources from which it draws its students.

The aim in all the instruction of the School is to furnish the general basis of business facts and theory which the beginner finds it difficult to get in his early business experience. It avoids any pretense of covering satisfactorily the detailed technique and routine of particular industries, since this may be acquired much more effectively in each industry during the early probationary period of actual business experience than it can be taught in the School.

Digitized by Google

For purposes of instruction the field of business is divided into general groups — for example, Industrial Management, Banking, Marketing, or Foreign Trade — rather than into particular industries, such as Steel or Paper. Certain industries which have special characteristics, such as Transportation and Lumbering, are nevertheless, covered by courses which are on a more specialized basis.

The instruction in the School is, so far as practicable, conducted on the case or problem method, based upon classroom discussion and frequent written reports on specific business facts or problems studied in varied forms as they occur in business. Many such problems are presented by business men as they arise currently in their own affairs. A large part of the class-room work consists of the discussion of problems which the student has had an opportunity to study and upon which he has formulated his judgment. The general principles underlying business and its organization are deduced so far as possible from such business problems instead of being laid down dogmatically as rules for guidance. In the written problem work the instructor requires the student to investigate facts, to sort undigested material, to study and analyze problems, to reach conclusions, and to present the subject matter and his decision in reports.

Fieldwork is an important part of the School method. Many of the written problems are of a nature which can be worked out only in the plant in which the subject has arisen. The School is able to rely confidently on the coöperation of a large number of business men in making this fieldwork effective. Practically no text books are used in the School but constantly increasing use is made of printed problems which economize the time of the student and make the instruction more effective. The aim of the School is to simplify the effort and minimize the time spent by the student in the acquisition of facts, in order that more effort and time may be available for the analytical and constructive training.

THE BUSSEY INSTITUTION

The Bussey Institution, grown up since its founding in 1871 from a mere undergraduate school of agriculture to a position of importance in the world of science, provides a chance for investigation into all the practical problems of Botany and Zoölogy. Its buildings and grounds are located at Forest Hills, within the city limits of Boston. Next to it, on a great tract of 304 acres, is the Arnold Arboretum, a splendid museum of trees and shrubs, devoted to experiments in arboriculture and forestry.

The Institution offers a course of study of two years, leading to the degree of Master of Science or Master of Forestry. As at present worked out, emphasis is being laid in the course upon the experimental study of insects, the laws of heredity in animals and plants, a study of the effect of environment on plants, and the science of forest management. The facilities for the purpose are unusual, due both to its constant coöperation with the other University departments, and the easy access to the Arboretum, the Gray Herbarium, and, though at a greater distance, the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy in Cambridge. The exceptionally fine Harvard Forest at Petersham is an especially important source of material.

THE HARVARD ENGINEERING SCHOOL

The Harvard Engineering School, as now organized, was established in 1918, after the coöperative agreement with the Massachusetts Institute of Technology was terminated. Though new in name the school is not of recent origin. The teaching of engineering in the University began in 1847 when the Lawrence Scientific School was established. For a time (1906–1914) the instruction offered in the school was open only to graduate students; both undergraduate and graduate courses of study are now offered.

The general plan of instruction is as follows:

(1) Four-year undergraduate programs in Mechanical, Electrical, Electric Communication, Civil, and Sanitary and Municipal Engineering; Sanitary Chemistry, Mining, Metallurgy, and Industrial Chemistry, leading to the degree of Bachelor of Science with the department of study designated.

(2) Coöperative arrangements with engineering and industrial organizations by which Third-Year students may obtain practical experience.

(3) Five-year undergraduate programs combining engineering and business administration which include (a) on the engineering side, all the general and scientific training of one of the four-year programs; (b) the industrial coöperative work in the Third Year; and (c) on the business side (using the engineering training as a foundation) a well-rounded course of study in industrial management. These programs lead to the degree of Bachelor of Science in Engineering and Business Administration; and the instruction is given in coöperation by the Faculties of Engineering and Business Administration.

(4) Specialized graduate courses and opportunities for research in all departments of study, leading to higher degrees.

There are two plans of admission to the First Year of the school, both very flexible, which are the same as for Harvard College, and administered by a common committee. Neither Latin nor Greek is required, but either or both are acceptable; in general students are advised to offer trigonometry, physics, chemistry and two modern languages for admission. Any graduate of a good high school should be able to qualify.

Although the school is a separate department, its work is organized with a definite purpose of maintaining close relations between the faculties and the student bodies of the School and the College; in order that students may have the benefit of instruction under teachers whose interests lie outside the technical fields, and also may participate fully in the student life of Cambridge. More than half the courses required in all the engineering programs are courses which may be counted toward a degree in the College; and a student in the College may, if he chooses his electives wisely, transfer to the school without loss of time, at the end of his Freshman or Sophomore year. After graduation from the College (or another college) he may enter the Third Year of the school, and in two years obtain his engineering degree.

The buildings and equipment are well adapted to the work of the School; and since the war the laboratories have been largely remodeled and greatly enlarged.

The greatest attraction which the School has to offer young men is the opportunity to fit themselves for a technical profession under the instruction of a large and representative group of first-rate teachers, who seek constantly to maintain close personal contact with their students.

THE SCHOOLS OF ARCHITECTURE AND OF LANDSCAPE ARCHITECTURE

These two graduate schools are grouped under the Faculty of Architecture. Robinson Hall, which they occupy, is one of the best equipped buildings in the College yard, exclusive of the Widener Library. It contains full size casts of important pieces of architecture, a collection of original marble fragments of Greek, Roman, and Italian Renaissance detail, and other works of art. Instruction in the two schools is generally independent, but the subjects are so closely related that the collections of each school are of advantage to the other, and it is convenient to each set of students to be in contact with work in the allied subject.

Men intending to study Architecture can obtain a broad artistic preparation and anticipate some of the work for the Master's degree by taking Fine Arts courses in the college.

Instruction in Landscape Architecture is based on a knowledge of topographical surveying, botany, geology, horticulture, and forestry. The equipment of the University in these subjects is exceptional. The University Museum, the Botanic Garden, the Arnold Arboretum, and the Engineering Camp at Squam Lake comprise a part of the many opportunities which are available in the study of Landscape Architecture.

THE GRADUATE SCHOOL OF EDUCATION

Systematic instruction in Education was first given in Harvard University in 1891, when Paul Henry Hanus was appointed Assistant Professor of the History and Art of Teaching. The courses in Education were given in the Division of Philosophy until 1906, when the instructors in Education were organized as a separate Division of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences. The degree of Master of Arts of a program of studies in the field of Education was first conferred by Harvard University in 1896; and the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in 1905. The Graduate School of Education is in effect a reorganization and enlargement of the work of the Division of Education, in recognition of the further need for the professional training of teachers and school officers and for the study of educational problems.

The Graduate School of Education has the following aims:

1. To provide introductory training for prospective teachers and school officers.— Inexperienced students will find in the School the opportunity to study the principles and problems of education in general and with respect to special fields, such as secondary education, and also the opportunity to secure an apprenticeship in teaching.

2. To provide advanced training for experienced teachers and school officers.— Those who look forward to future activity as principals, superintendents of schools, normal-school teachers, specialists in certain fields, and college teachers of Education, will find in the School opportunity for the study of their professional problems.

3. To provide for original investigation and experiment in Education and for constructive contributions to the theory and practice of teaching and educational administration.— A further important aim of the school is to provide opportunity for the study of Education from the standpoint of the citizen. Accordingly, the instructors of the School give certain courses under the Faculty of Arts and Sciences which deal with Education as of interest to all university students, whether they intend to become teachers or not. Such courses may also serve as an introduction to later technical study and research.

The courses offered in the School are of a strictly technical character and lead to the professional degrees of Master of Education and Doctor of Education. They are arranged in curricula intended to prepare students for positions as teachers in secondary schools, superintendents of schools and other officers of educational administration, teachers or supervisors of playgrounds and recreation centers, directors of club and camp work and teachers or supervisors of physical education, principals and teachers in vocational schools and vocational and educational advisers, school psychologists and specialists in the testing of school children, specialists in the care and training of the feebleminded, educational statisticians, elementary-school supervisors and principals, normal-school teachers, and college teachers of Education.

The School maintains a Laboratory of Educational Psychology, a Psycho-Educational Clinic, a Bureau of Vocational Guidance, and a Collection of Tests and Measures. These organizations all contribute to the conduct of research in the school, and the school systems of neighboring towns and cities afford excellent opportunities both for research and for apprentice teaching. The School conducts many courses in the summer. An Appointment Committee serves the professional interests of the graduates of the School and meets the calls from public and private institutions for trained leaders in the various fields of educational work.

THE HARVARD MUSICAL ASSOCIATION

In 1837 the honorary and immediate members of the Pierian Sodality formed themselves into an association for the cultivation of musical taste and science, and for the introduction of music as a regular branch of instruction at Harvard College. The name, "The Harvard Musical Association," was not adopted until 1840. Since then the Association has had an important influence on the development of musical instruction at Harvard. Its most significant mission has been the shaping of the public opinion in regard to music in Boston. The Symphony Orchestra and the Cecilia Club were both organized by members of the Association. The clubhouse is at 57A Chestnut St., Boston, where there is a notable library of music. Of the three hundred resident members, at least two-thirds must be alumni of Harvard or some other college. CONSTITUTION OF STUDENT COUNCIL

The purpose of this Council is to coöperate thoroughly with the Faculty in raising the general intellectual standard at Harvard as stated in the undergraduate petition to the Faculty dated April 29, 1908, to bring before the governing bodies of the University expression of undergraduate opinion on subjects pertaining to the University, and to coöperate with the Athletic Committee in eradicating any evils in the conduct of athletics. The attainment of this purpose is to be effected in part by direct jurisdiction over individual students, and in part by creating the general sentiment that it is a question of individual and college honor to maintain a strict attention to scholastic duties.

A. MEMBERSHIP

1. The Council is to be composed as follows: (1) the four class presidents, (2) the captains and managers of the five major teams, (3) the chief executive officer of each of the following papers: the Advocate, the Crimson, and the Lampoon, (4) the Vice-president of the Union, (5) three representatives from the Phi Beta Kappa elected by its members, (6) ten members from the College at large elected by their respective classes as follows: 2 Seniors, 4 Juniors, 1 Sophomore, 1 Freshman, (to be elected at the time of the election of class officers, except in the case of the Senior class), (7) President of Phillips Brooks House, (8) Chairman of the Committee on Organization, (9) one member elected jointly by the Glee and Instrumental Clubs, (10) two members elected from the Cosmopolitan Club to represent foreign students, (11) the President of the University Register, and (12) the President and Secretary of the Minor Sports Committee.

II. Those men having membership in the Council by virtue of an undergraduate office shall retain their membership until the end of the academic year in which the qualifying office was held. The members elected from the College at large shall retain their membership until their successors are elected. No undergraduate who is not in good standing at the College Office shall be eligible for membership. No member of the Council who fails to maintain good standing shall continue as a member of the Council. The Student Council shall appoint members to fill any vacancies that may occur. This constitution may be amended by a two-thirds vote of the entire Council after three weeks' notice of such change has been given to the undergraduates.

B. Meetings

I. The Council shall meet at least twice in each academic year. The first meeting shall be held within one week after the annual election of members. The president shall be empowered to call special meetings.

II. A quorum shall consist of a majority of the members.

C. Officers

The officers of the Council shall be a president, a vice-president, and a secretary-treasurer, all of whom shall be Seniors. The president shall preside at all meetings, and shall have the power to cast a vote only in the case of a tie. The vice-president shall, in the absence of the president, assume all his powers. The secretary-treasurer shall perform all the duties regularly pertaining to that office, and shall act as vice-president of the University Register. All officers shall be elected at the first meeting of the Student Council after the election of members.

D. Committees

I. Executive Committee. There shall be an Executive Committee of seven members, of whom five shall be Seniors and two Juniors. The officers of the Council shall be ex-Officio members of the Executive Committee. The two remaining Seniors and two Juniors shall be elected at the first meeting of the Council, shall report on its actions to the Council at the first regular meeting of the Council subsequent to the actions in question, and shall have this report published in the Crimson as soon after its presentation as expedient. The Executive Committee shall have the power to require any member of the Council to investigate and report to it on any subject in the field of the Council's activity. The Executive Committee shall hold office from its election until June 1. The Executive Committee shall be empowered to fill any vacancy which may occur among its members. The Executive Committee shall meet at least twice in each month during its term of office. The Executive Committee shall be ex-officio members of the Advisory Committee of the University Register, and shall administer the sinking fund of that publication.

II. Nominating Committee. A Nominating Committee of seven members shall be appointed by the president of the Council before June 1 of each year. The Nominating Committee shall consist of the two Junior Members of the Executive Committee, three Juniors and two Sophomores appointed from the Council at large and the President of the Freshman class. The Nominating Committee shall, after the first two weeks of the academic year and before the class elections, make nominations from which the members at large are to be elected by their respective classes. Twelve Seniors, 10 Juniors and 8 Sophomores shall be nominated. Additional nominations for delegates from any one class may be made by petition of 50 members of that class. Such petitions must reach the Nominating Committee at least 48 hours before the elections. The Nominating Committee shall assume all the functions and powers of the Executive Committee from the first day of June to the time of the election of an Executive Committee by the Council in the following fall.

E. Powers of the Council

(1) To advise the executive of any student organization open to competition as to the conduct of such organization. (2) To obtain through the College Office necessary information pertaining to the undergraduate body, such as marks, cuts, absences from Cambridge, etc. Note.— The purpose of the above is to enable the Council to have at all times exact data so that it may give warning to individuals, teams, etc., and to assist in the maintenance of the required standard. (3) To investigate any infringement of College rules that it may see fit, with the power of recommendation to the University executive. (4) To confer with any of the governing bodies of the University or any member thereof, upon any subject pertaining to the undergraduate body. (5) To regulate all mass meetings and student demonstrations, athletic, political, or otherwise. (6) To prohibit any man who shows an indisposition to respect the recommendation of the Council from becoming and remaining a member of any athletic team, musical club, theatrical club, etc. (7) To confer with the Athletic Committee on athletic questions with the power of recommendation as to schedules, etc. (8) To execute all further powers the Faculty may see fit to grant it. (9) To publish annually, through a board of editors sanctioned by itself, the Harvard University Register, from which it shall receive a certain proportion of the profits in successful years, and for which it shall take over the deficit in case the issue is a financial loss.

CLASS COLORS

1922—Blue and White
1923—Orange and Black
1924—Green and White
1925—Crimson and White

The Freshman colors are always Crimson and white.

At the end of the year the Seniors hand over their colors to the Freshmen.

SENIOR CLASS CONSTITUTION

ARTICLE I

Members

Section 1.— The members of the class of 1922 shall be:

(a) All men who are candidates for the degree of A.B. or S.B. in 1922.
(b) All men who have received, or who will receive their degrees as of the class of 1922.
(c) All men who are fourth year special students.

Section 2.— Men in the University not included under any of these classifications who entered with the class of 1922 but who are not officially registered with the class of 1922 may on petition receive the right to vote with the Class.

Section 3.— No man who has voted in any previous Class Day election shall be eligible to vote.

Section 4.— A provisional list of members of the Class shall be compiled by the nominating Committee hereinafter mentioned, and shall be posted before the first Friday in December.

Section 5.— Any man whose name is not on the list of members of the class compiled by the Nominating Committee may petition the Committee to enter his name thereon. Such petitions must be delivered to the Committee before the Monday following the first Friday in December, and shall be passed upon finally by the Committee.

ARTICLE II

Officers

Section 1.— The officers of the Class shall be First, Second, and Third Marshals, Secretary, Treasurer, Orator, Ivy Orator, Poet, Odist, and Chorister.

Section 2.— The duties of these officers shall be those usually incumbent upon their offices.

Section 3.— The First Marshal shall act as the Class President and the Secretary as Class Secretary until Class Day. At meetings of the Class after Class Day the First Marshal shall preside, and in his absence, the second Marshal, and in the absence of both, the Third Marshal.

Section 4.— The Treasurer shall be a regular member of the Class Committee. The three Marshals and the Secretary shall be ex-officiis members of the Class Committee.

Section 5.— Senior Class Officers shall hold office for life.

ARTICLE III

Nomination of Officers

Section 1.— Before December 1 of the Senior year, the President of the Class shall appoint a Nominating Committee of five members, no one of whom shall be a member of a final club or shall be generally considered a candidate for a Class office other than a committee.

Section 2.— The Nominating Committee shall have general charge of the Class Elections. Before the Friday preceding the second Wednesday in December, it shall nominate at least two candidates for each Class office.

Section 3.— Additional nominations for Class offices may be made by petition of twenty-five members of the Class to the Nominating Committee; such petitions, with the exception of those for Secretary and Committee-men, must be received before Monday preceding the second Wednesday in December.

Section 4.— The election of Senior Class Officers, with the exception of Secretary and Class Committees, shall be held on the second Wednesday of December.

Digitized by Google

Section 5.— Every elector shall vote for three candidates for Marshals, indicating his preference for First Marshal. Of the three elected, the candidate receiving the highest number of votes for First Marshal shall be declared First Marshal; of the other two, the one whose total vote is higher shall be Second Marshal, and the other one Third Marshal.

Section 6.— Within twenty-four hours after the election of Marshals and other Class officers, the Nominating Committee shall make nominations for Secretary and the Class Committees. Additional nominations may be made by petition of twenty-five members of the Class to the Nominating Committee; such petitions must be received before the Saturday following the second Wednesday in December.

Section 7.— The election of the Class Secretary and the Class Committees shall be held on the Tuesday after the second Wednesday in December.

Section 8.— Every elector shall vote for two candidates for the Class Committee, three for the Album Committee, and seven for the Class Day Committee. The two candidates receiving the highest number of votes for the Class Committee, the three candidates receiving the highest number of votes for the Album Committee, and the seven candidates receiving the highest number of votes for the Class Day Committee shall be declared elected. Each Committee shall elect its own Chairman.

Section 9.— If for any reason any office or position becomes vacant, the vacancy shall be filled by that candidate who received the next highest number of votes for that office or position.

Section 10.— Every ballot not containing the required number of names for Marshals or the respective Committees shall be declared invalid for the Marshals or those Committees.

Section 11.— The Australian ballot shall be used in all Class elections.

ARTICLE IV

Meetings

Section 1.— Meetings shall be called at the discretion of the President, or within six days after the receipt of a petition signed by twenty-five members of the Class, stating the proposed discussion to be brought before the meeting. The purpose of all meetings and the subjects to be discussed therein should be published by the President two days before said meetings.

Section 2.— At meetings of the Class, except those for constitutional amendment, a quorum shall consist of seventy-five members of the Class.

Section 3.— Roberts' Rules of Order shall govern the proceedings of all meetings of the Class.

ARTICLE V

Amendments

Section 1.— This constitution may be amended by a two-thirds vote of members present at a special meeting.

Section 2.— Notice of this meeting, together with a statement of the nature of the proposed amendment, shall be published one week previous to the said meeting.

Section 3.— At all meetings for questions of Constitutional Amendment a quorum shall consist of a hundred and seventy-five members of the Class.

Section 4.— Any proposed amendment to this Constitution shall be presented first to the Executive Committee of the Student Council, which shall have the right to report through its representative concerning the amendment, at the meeting in which said amendment is to be voted upon.

CONSTITUTION FOR THREE LOWER CLASSES

ARTICLE I

Members

The members of the class of —— shall be:

(a) Men registered at the College Office as of the Class of ——.

(b) Men who entered College with the Class of —— and who have not voted with another class.

ARTICLE II

Officers

Section 1.— The class officers shall be a President, a Vice-President, and a Secretary-Treasurer, elected in the manner hereinafter provided.

Section 2.— The duties of the President shall be to preside at all meetings, to make a public statement of class finances twice each year, and to assume other duties usually incumbent upon his office.

Section 3.— The duties of the Vice-President shall be to assume the Presidential duties in the absence of the President.

Section 4.— The duties of the Secretary-Treasurer shall be to preserve all class records, to have general oversight of all financial matters, and to render to the President twice each year the financial statement which is to be made public as provided in Article II, Section 2.

Section 5.— The three officers shall have power to levy uniform class assessments and appoint all non-elective committees.

Section 6.— All officers shall hold office until their successors are elected.

ARTICLE III

Election of Officers

Section 1.— In the Freshman year the Student Council shall have general charge of the class election and shall determine the date thereof.

Section 2.— In the Freshman year, the Executive Committee of the Student Council shall make not less than two nominations for each of the Freshman Class Officers. These nominations shall be published at least one week before the election.

Section 3.— Additional nominations for Freshman Class officers may be made by petition, each petition to be signed by thirty-five members of the Freshman Class. Such petitions shall be received by the Executive Committee of the Student Council until forty-eight hours before the election.

Section 4.— In the Sophomore and Junior years, the class officers of the previous year shall constitute a nomination and election committee and shall have general charge of the elections which shall be held not later than the twenty-fifth day after the opening of college.

Section 5.— In the Sophomore and Junior years, the committee defined in Section 4 shall publish not less than ten days before the date set for the elections a list of two and not more than two nominations for each class office. Nominations shall then be made by petition, each petition to be signed by 35 members of the class. Such petitions shall be delivered to the Secretary-Treasurer of the class not later than the third day before the date of elections. The Secretary-Treasurer of the class shall then publish the name of each nominee within twenty-four hours after receiving it. On the fifth day before the date of elections, a complete list of nominations to date shall be published with a statement that additional nominations will be received until the third day before elections.

Section 6.— In the Sophomore and Junior years, should no petitions be received for any one class officer, the committee composed of the class officers of the previous year shall make one additional nomination for that office and may make two.

Digitized by Google

Section 7.— The system of preferential voting described below shall be used in all class elections. Each elector shall indicate his order of preference for all the candidates for each office. A first choice shall count one, a second two, and so on. The candidate receiving the lowest numerical total shall be declared elected. Any ballot on which all the candidates for any office have not been voted upon shall be declared invalid for that office.

Section 8.— The Australian ballot shall be used in all class elections.

Section 9.— No man who has held any class office shall be eligible for any class office again until Senior year.

Section 10.— Any election of class officers shall be declared valid if sixty per cent or more of the members of the class affected shall have voted.

Section 11. If at any election a sufficient number of votes are not cast at the first ballot, further ballotings shall be held at intervals of not more than ten days, suffrage being restricted to those members who have not already voted, until a sufficient number of votes have been cast.

ARTICLE IV

Committees

Section 1.— The Class Officers shall appoint a committee on Finance, which shall be empowered to collect all Class dues.

Section 2.— The Class Officers shall appoint other Committees at their discretion.

Section 3.— The three Class Officers shall be ex-officiis members of all Committees.

ARTICLE V

Meetings

Section 1.— Meetings shall be called at the discretion of the President, or within six days after the receipt of a petition signed by twenty-five members of the Class stating the proposed discussion to be brought before the meeting. The purpose of all meetings and the subjects to be discussed therein should be published by the President two days before said meetings.

Section 2.— At meetings of the Class, except those for constitutional amendment, a quorum shall consist of seventy-five members of the Class.

Section 3.— Roberts' Rules of Order shall govern the proceedings of all meetings of the Class.

ARTICLE VI

Amendments

Section 1.— This constitution may be amended by a two-thirds vote of members present at a special meeting.

Section 2.— Notice of this meeting, together with a statement of the nature of the proposed amendment, shall be published one week previous to the said meeting.

Section 3.— At all meetings for questions of Constitutional Amendment a quorum shall consist of a hundred and seventy-five members of the Class.

Section 4.— Any proposed amendment to this Constitution shall be presented first to the Executive Committee of the Student Council, which shall have the right to report through its representative concerning the amendment, at the meeting in which said amendment is to be voted upon.

ARTICLE VII

Term of the Constitution

SCHOLARSHIP

PHI BETA KAPPA

ALPHA CHAPTER OF MASSACHUSETTS

Founded 1781

PURPOSE: To reward scholarship.

The Society elects eight men from the twelve highest in the Junior class and twenty-two from the forty-four highest in the Senior class who shall best represent the scholarly activity of the College. In order to meet exceptional cases where persons have shown distinguished excellence in scholarship but have failed to stand sufficiently high in sheer grades to qualify for the previous election, the Senior members may choose five additional Seniors, and five more Seniors who attain unusual distinction at graduation.

The annual dues of the Society are $10.00; and the Club room is in the South Tower of Memorial Hall.

Weekly dinners are held in the Society's room and prominent members of the Faculty are invited as guests and speakers. The graduates also hold a series of dinners during the year. Phi Beta Kappa Day, the Monday of Commencement Week, is the occasion for literary exercises, always of the first rank for scholarly value. Such men as Ralph Waldo Emerson 1821, Oliver Wendell Holmes '61, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow, LL.D. (hon.) '59, have read poems at these meetings. Among the men who have delivered orations on these days are Edward Everett 1811; Joseph Story 1798; Charles Sumner '30; Charles Francis Smith '56; James Bryce, LL.D. (hon.) '67; Charles William Eliot '53.

Phi Beta Kappa is thus the highest reward for intellectual endeavor in the College and at the same time an inspiration to her members in the application of that ability.

SCHOLARSHIPS, HARVARD COLLEGE

The names of holders of Scholarships in Harvard College are arranged in three groups, in accordance with votes of the Faculty of Arts and Sciences.

The first group of holders of Scholarships is made up of those undergraduates whose work in the preceding College year entitles them to "very high academic distinction." No student is admitted to this group until his record for the preceding year, in all his courses, has been carefully inspected and the question of his fitness has been submitted to every one of his teachers. Only very high grades in his studies and concurrent testimony in his favor from a sufficient number of his teachers enable the Committee on Scholarships and other Aids for Undergraduates to recommend him for a position in the first group.

John Harvard Scholarships are given only to students deemed worthy of a position in the first group.

THE BENNETT PRIZE

An annual prize of one hundred dollars, from a fund established by JAMES GORDON BENNETT, of New York, is offered for the best essay in English prose on some subject of American governmental, domestic, or foreign policy of contemporaneous interest.

This prize is open only to members of the Senior Class of Harvard College and to Special Students in their third or fourth year who have taken courses in Political Science and English Literature.

Winner 1920–21

WILLIAM SUMNER HOLBROOK, JR., '21, of Davenport, Ia.

BOWDOIN PRIZES

The income of a bequest by James Bowdoin, Harvard 1735, in 1787, and an addition by George Sullivan Bowdoin in 1901, of the sum of $15,000 are applied "annually in the way of premiums for the advancement of useful and polite literature among the residents, as well as the undergraduates of the University." There are three prizes for undergraduates, and four for graduates. For undergraduates the prizes are: a first prize of two hundred and fifty dollars, and two second prizes of one hundred dollars each. They are offered annually to undergraduates in regular standing for dissertations in English on any subject approved by the Chairman of the Committee. Prizes are offered also to undergraduates for dissertations in Greek and Latin upon chosen subjects. In these languages two prizes of fifty dollars each are offered. Manuscripts must be delivered by April 1 to the Secretary of the Faculty, 20 University Hall.

PART VI

PUBLICATIONS

THE HARVARD GRADUATES' MAGAZINE

The Harvard Graduates' Magazine, a quarterly of about 200 pages, was founded in the autumn of 1892 to furnish a permanent record of the events most important in the life of the University, and to give alumni an opportunity of knowing from authentic sources the facts of graduate and undergraduate life. The first number was published in October, 1892. William Roscoe Thayer '81 held the position of Editor for twenty-three years.

The magazine includes contributed articles, chiefly by alumni, reports from the various departments of the University, summaries of student life and athletics, the official minutes of the Corporation and Board of Overseers, marriages, necrology, an important department of news from the classes, and literary notices. It is published quarterly, on September 1, December 1, March 1, and June 1.

Communications for the Editor should be sent to Mr. A. S. Pier, Hyde Park. Business communications should be addressed to Mr. W. H. Wade at the office of the magazine, 99 State St., Boston. The annual subscription price is $4.00.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY GAZETTE

The Gazette is the Official medium for announcement by the several Boards, Faculties, and Administrative Officers of the University, and for the announcement of lectures, conferences, readings, and concerts.

It is published weekly during the academic year at the subscription price of $1.00 for the year.

THE HARVARD CRIMSON

The Harvard Crimson, the daily paper of the University, is a descendant of the "Echo," founded in 1879. The "Echo" died in 1881, and was followed by the "Herald." In the fall of 1883 the "Herald" consolidated with the "Daily Crimson," and from this combination dates the unbroken career of the present paper, although the present title "The Harvard Crimson," was not decided upon until 1891.

In 1919 the "Crimson" and the "Harvard Illustrated" were amalgamated and established a photographic board for the purpose of publishing a fortnightly pictorial supplement.

"The Harvard Crimson" aims to perform two main functions: first, to keep the undergraduates informed of the progress which is being made by the various organizations of the University, and by its representative teams; second, to preserve in its files a complete record of all the University activities as a matter of reference.

To make the paper as news editors, candidates must survive a twelve weeks' competition, during which they are required to scour the University for news. The business management is in the hands of undergraduates chosen for their ability to acquire advertising and to handle practical business problems. There is also an editorial-writing competition. The news competitions are held for men in the last half of Freshman year and in both halves of Sophomore year. The business manager's competition is held in the first half of Sophomore year. The editorial writers may compete in both halves of Junior year. Photographic competitions are open to members of the Freshman and Sophomore classes.

The Crimson Building is No. 14 Plympton Street. The subscription price, $4.50 for the College year, is accepted there.

HARVARD LAMPOON

The Lampoon is the College comic paper, and is the oldest humorous publication in America. It was founded in 1876 but was discontinued after Class Day, 1880. In 1881 it was revived and has continued, uninterrupted, to the present time.

The Lampoon is published during the college year at the Lampoon Building on Bow St. Telephone, University 54222. The subscription is $3.00 a year; $2.50 to undergraduates.

The traditions of British and American humor continue inviolate in its pages. Several who today with pen and pencil freshen the world's jocund floods of laughter were trained under its tutelage. Its satire never fails in its healthy effect, when affectation becomes too obvious in college or in life in the world. Perhaps this is the reason why among the graduate editors are numbered such a large percentage of the country's critics and men of letters.

THE HARVARD MAGAZINE

The Harvard Magazine, the monthly magazine of general interests, is an innovation in the field of college publications.

From its inception in the spring of 1919 its aim has been to publish the best there is in literary, comic, and pictorial effort from Harvard and Radcliffe, and at the same time to appeal to the interests of all college men. Hence the Magazine includes short stories, poetry, athletic articles, pertinent editorials, and jokes, with cartoons and illustrations.

Regular undergraduate competitions are held for election to the board of literary, art, and business editors.

Yearly subscription (8 issues) one dollar.

Address: The Harvard Magazine, Box 114, Cambridge 38, Mass.

THE HARVARD LAW REVIEW

The Harvard Law Review was founded in 1887 by a few students of the Law School, who before that time had associated as a law club. It is the oldest of the student legal publications. The management is entirely in the hands of a board elected from among the highest standing men in the second and third year classes. These men write all the editorials, dealing with current decisions of the courts and current legislative policies. Longer articles of interest are contributed by the law Faculty and by eminent lawyers.

HARVARD THEOLOGICAL REVIEW

The Harvard Theological Review, issued by the Faculty of Divinity, is an undenominational theological quarterly, established by the aid of the bequest of Miss Mildred Everett, daughter of Rev. Charles Carroll Everett, D.D., Bussey Professor of Theology in the Harvard Divinity School, 1869–1900, and Dean of the School, 1878–1900.

The Review aims to include discussions in the various fields of theological study and also in the history of religion, ethics, education, economics, and sociology, in their theoretical and religious aspects. It is designed to serve the needs not only of clergymen and scholars, but of all who are interested in religious thought and in the place and function of religion in modern life.

Remittances and communications on business matters should be addressed to the Director of the Harvard University Press, Cambridge, Mass. The subscription price is $2.00 for the year.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY REGISTER

The Harvard University Register is published annually by the Student Council in order to give those interested in College affairs not only a concise and complete record of Harvard activities, but also a convenient book of reference and general information in regard to students' organizations, and complete directories of the University with an index of each man's activities. In its recent development this publication has aimed to become more and more an undergraduate year book, an ornament as well as a necessary adjunct to a student's desk.

Except for 1918–1919, when war conditions prevented, the Register and its forerunner, the Index, have been issued without a break since 1873, making it the second oldest continuous undergraduate publication. It has had a checkered history, but since 1911 has been issued by a board appointed by the Student Council.

The Register is issued about the first of December, and statistics are corrected to November 1st.

The price in Cambridge is $3.00 a copy.

RELIGIOUS AND PHILANTHROPIC ACTIVITIES

PHILLIPS BROOKS HOUSE ASSOCIATION

The Phillips Brooks House Association is a federation of the several religious organizations of the University, and unites, chiefly through them, the men in the University interested in religious and philanthropic work. Special committees of the federal organization have charge of the Information Bureau, established at Phillips Brooks House at the beginning of each year, the issue of the Harvard Handbook, the Phillips Brooks House Class Day Spread, the Chapel, the direction of the social service work, the Harvard Mission, and the work in the graduate schools.

In the Randall Room of Phillips Brooks House are kept the combined libraries of the various societies, the books of which may be withdrawn by any member of the University.

Since 1907 the association has managed a Text Book Loan Library, stocked with gifts of text books from students. These books are loaned to students who cannot well afford to purchase them.

HARVARD UNIVERSITY CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION

The Harvard University Christian Association is the oldest, the largest, and the most comprehensive of the constituent societies of the Phillips Brooks House Association. The object of this association is to promote Christian life and work in the University. Its special activities include the dormitory and lecture classes for the study of the Bible and discussion of religious problems, the holding of regular Tuesday evening meetings in Phillips Brooks House, the work among new students and foreign students, and the maintenance of a reading room, open to all members of the University; but the Association regards itself as responsible for its reasonable share in the social service and miscellaneous work of the House.

No sectarian lines are drawn in the Association, and church membership is no prerequisite for membership; but the Association endeavors to bring together the men who are striving to be Christians, to promote in each the development of an intelligent and vital religious life, and to coöperate in the extension of the Kingdom of God.

ST. PAUL'S SOCIETY

The St. Paul's Society is the organization of Episcopalians in the University. Its purpose as expressed in its constitution is "to bring together churchmen connected with the University and to give them opportunities for work and worship agreeable to the spirit and forms of the Church." A monthly corporate Communion of the Society is celebrated the first Sunday of every month at nine o'clock in the Cathedral Church of St. Paul, Boston. There is also a monthly college service at the Cathedral. At the opening of the college year a reception is tendered incoming churchmen in the Christ Church Parish House and during the year several dinners are held at the Cathedral.

To furnish opportunities for active work, the Social Service Secretary is at all times prepared to supply positions to such men as desire them. The society also has a library.

ST. PAUL'S CATHOLIC CLUB

Formed in 1893 to bring the Catholics of Harvard into closer relationship with one another, to promote their religion, and to make known the good will existing between Catholics and Non-Catholics in this University, St. Paul's Catholic Club has grown steadily. It now occupies the Newman House, 34 Mt. Auburn Street.

The officers wish to meet personally all Roman Catholics in the University, especially Freshmen and those coming from a distance. At the meetings prominent clergy and laymen address the club on interesting topics. All Non-Catholics are assured of a cordial welcome at any of these lectures.

The permanent chaplain is the pastor of St. Paul's Parish, or any assistant he may appoint.

SOCIAL SERVICE

The Social Service Committee of the Phillips Brooks House has charge of all the social service activities undertaken by students of the University, all of which are intended to bring to the service of the community the resources which the University possesses in the leisure time of the students, and to give them "laboratory practice" in serving the community. These activities include leadership in boys' clubs, teaching night classes for foreigners and working men, and Juvenile Court and Associated Charities work.

The department is in charge of a Social Service Committee with offices in Phillips Brooks House. Several conferences are held during the year; most of these are open to the University and to the head workers of the various settlement houses.

THE CLUBS OF HARVARD OF TODAY

By RICHARD CHUTE '22

President of the Institute of 1770, D. K. E.

For years undergraduates and graduates of Harvard have criticized and made fun of its club system, saying that there were far too many clubs to be of any possible use.

Harvard has indeed a very great many clubs and societies. This at first may seem unnecessary and even absurd, but one will do well to remember that the birth of a new interest leads only naturally to the formation of a group to pursue it, and that a "club" may be merely a unit of association for the pursuit of a particular idea, and not a secluded organization of men who are simply congenial socially. The existence of so many different interests may seem cumbersome, but the very strength of the college is the widespread undergraduate interest in every direction. No man can come to Cambridge and be without the facilities to follow his own taste and to develop his own particular talent!

These organizations are often classified and divided into nine general groups: social, scientific, language and culture, musical, territorial, preparatory school, political, dramatic, and debating. There are also various other clubs which do not come under any of these headings.

This is quite a dazzling array of clubs. But no man, unless goaded by a false ambition, will display fitful flashes of interest in various directions only to let them die out as soon as he has made a club. Real interest is the primary qualification for entrance into any one of these organizations. The disappointing man in the college community is he who loses interest after he is in a club.

Let us consider these organizations separately:

1 Social

Among the purely social organizations are the Union, the Institute of 1770, D.K.E., the Hasty Pudding Club, the Pi Eta Society, the fraternities, the "waiting" clubs, and the "final" clubs.

The Institute, founded in 1770, has combined with the D.K.E. and men are elected to both simultaneously. It elects more than a hundred men from the Sophomore class in groups of fifteen, beginning in October. It also elects a few honorary members from the Junior and Senior classes.

The Hasty Pudding Club, an ancient and worthy society founded in 1795, elects about seventy-five men in groups of twenty-five from the Junior class, and a few from the Senior class. Every spring it produces a "show," of which the author, the cast, and the stage hands are members of the club. In addition to presenting the "show" in its own theatre in Cambridge, it gives performances during the spring vacation in Boston, New York and Philadelphia.

The Pi Eta Society, with an active membership of about seventy-five, elects the majority of its members from the Sophomore and Junior classes, and lays stress on the democratic nature of the organization. It also gives elaborate musical shows in its own theatre, comparable to those of the Hasty Pudding, and often worthy of high praise.

The fraternities are usually chapters of national fraternities, but in most cases the houses are run as clubs, i. e. although men eat and spend their free time in the houses, they do not use them as dormitories.

There are various "plain" clubs, as the Phoenix, the Signet Society and the Stylus Club. Membership in one of these does not keep a man from belonging to other clubs or a final club. The Signet Society and the Stylus Club stress literary activities to some extent, which influences the election of members.

There are two "waiting" clubs, the S. K. and the Iroquois, which elect most of their members from the Sophomore class. A man may belong to only one of the two. As the name "waiting" club implies, they serve merely as temporary quarters until men are elected to a "final" club; but men still retain their membership in them after election to a "final" club.

There are eight "final" clubs; membership in one of these excludes from membership in any other one of the eight. The final clubs are the Delphic, the A. D., the D. U., the Fox, the Fly, the Owl, the Porcellian, and the Spee.

Digitized by Google

The members of the clubs and the fraternities are elected according to the club agreement which follows this article, and which provides, among other things, that a man may not be canvassed for a club before the beginning of his Sophomore year, and may not be elected to a club before the fourth Monday after the opening of college in his Sophomore year.

These social clubs, like the other clubs in college with more defined interests, are properly considered as a means for development and friendship, but by no means as a goal for the "social climber's" ambition. The fact that many prominent men in college are not members of the prominent clubs casts no reflection whatsoever on the men or on the clubs. The social club of today at Harvard holds the same position that a men's club holds in any city;— prominence may influence election, but congeniality and similar tastes are the deciding issue.

2 Scientific

Most of the scientific clubs, as is the case with the language and culture clubs, have as members both undergraduates and graduate students.

There are two clubs of men interested in chemistry, one of them a chapter of a national chemistry fraternity, and the other local. At their meetings they are addressed by prominent chemists, usually on phases of the science which are of unusual or contemporary importance. There is a wireless club made up largely of undergraduates, and also an aeronautical society. Men interested in anthropology and zoölogy, natural history, botany, and geology all have their clubs, as have those who are specializing in mathematics, engineering and architecture. These scientific clubs are necessarily closely affiliated with class-room interests, and as is the case in the language and culture clubs, members of the Faculty are often prominent members.

3 Language and Culture

The Cercle Français, for members of the University who speak French, forms a link between the college and the culture of France. It has frequent meetings, addressed on some subject relating to France, and devotes much time to sociability and conversation. Each year it presents a play in French. The Circulo Español is a similar organization. In addition there are clubs made up of men interested in the literature of the modern languages, and in Greek, Roman and Hebraic culture.

4 Musical

Harvard has many thriving musical clubs. The Musical Club proper is composed of men interested in music for its own sake. The Pierian Sodality of 1808 is America's oldest musical society. The Pierian Sodality orchestra holds open competitions for membership, as does the University Band, the Glee Club, and the Instrumental clubs which are composed of the Banjo Club and the Guitar and Mandolin Club. All these clubs give concerts in Cambridge, and also make trips to other cities. The Glee Club deserves especial mention, as it is very large and successful, and not only makes trips to other cities, but has even gone abroad (Summer of 1921).

5 Territorial

The territorial clubs embrace organizations of students from various sections and states of America, and also from other countries. The Cosmopolitan Club should be mentioned here. It is an organization of men from every part of the world, formed to foster the cosmopolitan interest which must arise from any such association.

6 Preparatory School

The preparatory school clubs are composed of men from various preparatory schools, and usually exist for the purpose of bringing the alumni of the school in college more closely together, and of keeping them in touch with the school.

7 Political

Interest in political clubs runs high in campaign years. The Republicans, Democrats, Socialists and other parties all have their organizations, members of which engage in practical campaign work.

8 Dramatic

The Dramatic Club focuses serious interest in the drama and presents semi-annually original plays, with actors and stage hands from its own membership. Two primarily social clubs, the Hasty Pudding Club and the Pi Eta, also produce plays annually, usually presenting an original musical comedy. Dramatic ability influences the qualifications for membership in these organizations.

9 Debating

The lively interest in public speaking and debating is guided by the Debating Council, an upper class organization, the Delta Sigma Rho, and the Freshman Debating Society.

There are also various other organizations such as the Chess Club and the History Club which furnish fields of activity to some. The James A. Shannon Post of the American Legion is an active post of the American Legion at Harvard, and has a membership of more than 200. The Memorial Society has as its purpose to foster among students interest in the historical associations of Harvard and to perpetuate the traditions of her past. In passing we shall not forget to mention the Liberal Club which does much to co-operate in liberal undertakings and movements.

This army of club and societies and leagues and associations may stagger you if you look at them all at once, but taken one by one they make the best tonic that Harvard can give. These clubs are all for men of similar interests, who want to open their eyes, to learn more, to investigate, whether they call it work or play. It is not a sombre sort of investigation: it is as serious as any pursuit undertaken willingly must be; but it is made bouyant by that very vigor of enthusiasm which gave rise to it.

There is a whip in Harvard for every man's hobby!

CLUB AGREEMENT

The subscribers to this agreement, which is printed in full below, are the A. D. Club, Alpha Phi Sigma Club, Alpha Sigma Phi Fraternity, Argo Club, Delphic Club, D. U. Club, Fly Club, Fox Club, Iroquois Club, K. G. X. Club, Owl Club, Phi Kappa Epsilon Society, Phoenix Club, Pi Eta Society, Porcellian Club, S. A. E. Fraternity, Sigma Alpha Mu Fraternity, S. K. Club, Spee Club, Stylus Club, Styx Club, Theta Delta Chi Club.

The agreement signed with the above named clubs is as follows:

Canvassing

1. Canvassing is here defined as "reading" or speaking or making to any undergraduate any statement or representation about any club, or notifying him directly or indirectly that he is or is not under consideration as a future member of any club.

2. Each club shall prohibit its undergraduate members and its members-elect (meaning thereby persons notified of their election but not yet initiated) from canvassing any undergraduate before the opening of College in his Sophomore year.

3. Each club shall request its graduate members to consider it a point of honor not to canvass any undergraduate in any way before the opening of College in his Sophomore year.

Pledging

4. No pledge or promise shall be accepted or taken from any undergraduate before the Friday following the fourth Monday after the opening of College in his Sophomore year by any club or by any member thereof to the effect that he will join any club or that he will not join any other club, and any such pledge or promise, whether originating in misunderstanding or otherwise, shall not be binding upon such undergraduate or upon any of the said clubs agreeing hereto, but shall be regarded by everybody as null and void and contrary to the spirit of this agreement.

Date of Election

5. No club shall elect as a member any undergraduate before the fourth Monday after the opening of College in his Sophomore year, or before that time pledge or promise election, even by implication, to such undergraduate.

Digitized by Google

Date of Notice of Elections

6. No club shall give notice to any undergraduate of his election earlier than the Tuesday following the fourth Monday after the opening of College in his Sophomore year.

Clubs Concerned

7. No club shall take as a member any undergraduate from the class of 1918 or subsequent classes, who has accepted election before the Friday following the fourth Monday after the opening of College in his Sophomore year to any other social club or society which takes in less than 100 members from a college class. The Advisory Committee shall have power to determine what organizations come within the meaning of this rule.

Institute of 1770

8. The clubs shall urge their members to change the elections to the Institute of 1770 so that the membership therein shall be increased to at least 150 men from each class, and that they shall be initiated therein at the rate of at least 15 men a week, beginning as early as possible in the Sophomore year.

Advisory Committee

9. Each club shall, annually before Commencement Day, appoint a graduate representative to serve throughout the following year on an Advisory Committee, which Committee shall elect its own chairman, who need not be a representative appointed by a club, and shall consider matters arising under this agreement and such modifications thereof as may seem desirable. The powers of this committee will be advisory only, except that it shall be the duty of this committee to take suitable steps to make this agreement known to all persons concerned.

When in Effect

10. This agreement shall be effective with relation to the members of the class of 1918 and subsequent classes.

Duration

11. This agreement shall continue without limitation, except that any club may withdraw after giving one year's written notice to the parties hereto.

Publicity

12. That all parties affected by this agreement may be fully cognizant of its contents, it is hereby provided that:—

(a) The provisions of this agreement affecting candidates shall be made public in such manner as the Advisory Committee shall determine;

(b) The agreement shall be read at the first meeting of every club held after the opening of College;

(c) The agreement shall thereafter remain posted in some conspicuous place in each club house.

13. Inasmuch as the successful working of this agreement depends upon the strict observance of all rules herein contained, each club member shall consider it a matter of honor to maintain such rules.

For the furtherance of these it is hereby provided that:—

(a) At stated intervals during the year the presidents of all the clubs that are parties to the agreement shall meet to discuss any question which may have arisen as to the working or infringement of the rules;

(b) Any complaint shall be at that time reported;

(c) Any disputes arising between any of the parties shall be submitted to arbitration in such form as the Advisory Committee shall determine.

PIERIAN SODALITY OF 1808

The Pierian Sodality of Harvard University is America's oldest musical society. Founded at Harvard in 1808 for the purpose of encouraging interest in choral and instrumental music and social life among its members, The Pierian Sodality has successively reared at the college a glee club, a chamber-music society, a musical club, the Band, and an orchestra. It was mainly responsible for the founding of the Music Department at Harvard — the first in an American University — and it was a series of concerts by the Harvard Musical Association, created by Pierian graduates, which was instrumental in prompting the late Major Higginson to found the Boston Symphony Orchestra. The Sodality is now chiefly interested in the maintenance of a concert orchestra.

Membership is both active and honorary. Members are chosen chiefly from the Pierian Sodality Orchestra.

THE HARVARD UNION

8 Quincy Street

The Harvard Union opens its third year this Fall as an organization directly under the management of the University. Membership in the Union is open to all members of the University upon payment of a fee of $10.00 or, for those who belonged to the Club during the year 1920–21, $7.50. During the past two years the Union has become essentially the Harvard Club of Cambridge and as such offers a wide range of attractions for undergraduates, and serves as headquarters for graduates when they return to visit the College.

The government of the Union is in the hands of a Governing Board and an Undergraduate Committee. The Governing Board is representative of the alumni, the graduate schools, the faculty, and the undergraduates, having as ex-officio members a president, chosen by the corporation of the University, a vice-president, elected by the undergraduates, and a graduate manager, also appointed by the corporation, who has the direct control and responsibility of the administration of the building. The Undergraduate Committee is elected directly by the undergraduates by postal ballot, in the Spring of the year, and consists of three members from the Senior Class, one from the Junior Class, and one from the Sophomore Class, together with the vice-president, who is an ex-officio member. These two committees are designed to represent all the elements which have an interest in the Union, and to provide for these elements such entertainments and facilities as they desire. The Union has been growing at a rapid rate during the past two years, and the possibilities of development seem without limit. It is a special function of the Undergraduate Committee to take up suggestions of undergraduates and, if possible, adopt them. In this way it is more easily possible to provide for the wants of those men who make the most use of the Union — the undergraduates.

The Union has also an excellently equipped library of the latest books, administered by a Library Committee chosen partly from the faculty and partly from students in College. This Committee has charge of the purchase of books and welcomes suggestions from members of the Club in regard to further accessions. It has now been made possible for members to take books, not in demand, from the library for a period of a week.

As a Club, the Union provides an excellently equipped restaurant, pool and billiard room, news-stand, barber shop, magazine room, having all the latest newspapers and periodicals, and general lounging and smoking rooms. Facilities for light refreshments to be served at any time of the day are also provided, and, in fact, the Union is coming to occupy, for its undergraduate members, a place which a man's club occupies in later life.

Taking up now the more special features of the Union, a regular series of lectures is held every year, and an effort is made, which has thus far met with great success, to entertain the most prominent men in public life — business, law, exploration, the drama, literature and humor,— and especially leading representatives of foreign countries in the United States. During the past two years such prominent men as Lord Grey, Stephen Leacock, Donald MacMillan, Vilhjalmur Stefansson, General Nivelle, Mark Sullivan, Hugh Walpole, Thomas W. Lamont and others have lectured at the Union. The program this year promises to be even more interesting. The Union also has a series of afternoon tea dances during the Fall and Spring of the year, open to all its members, and one or two large evening dances during the year. Any member of the Union may bring guests not eligible for membership to the Club at any time and, if he so desires, put them up for two weeks.

It has now become a well established custom for the more important undergraduate organizations to meet regularly in the Union and the Student Council already has its headquarters and records in the building, as well as the Dramatic Club. There are, at the disposal of undergraduates, a number of private rooms suitable for dinners, entertainments of all kinds, etc., and the number of undergraduate and graduate school clubs, as well as groups of faculty, who make use of the Union for special dinners is increasing steadily. The excellent catering service has established a well earned reputation, and it is possible to order special meals of any kind.

Probably one of the most important functions which the Union serves is that of host to visitors to Harvard College, and especially to visiting athletic teams. Immediately upon their arrival in Cambridge all visiting teams are sent guest cards that they may make use of the Club, and a blanket invitation is extended to the graduates and undergraduates of any large visiting college at the time of a big game. A special effort is always made to provide entertainment for the Yale and Princeton guests who come to Harvard. In this way the Union serves to tighten the bonds of friendship with rival colleges and to offer hospitality to any and all guests to Harvard who may always find a welcome there upon introducing themselves.

ATHLETICS

MANAGERSHIPS AND COMPETITIONS FOR MANAGERS

BY R. R. HIGGINS '22
Manager of the Football Team

For men who have no athletic ability, Harvard offers no greater opportunity for making acquaintances in and out of college than managerships and managerial competitions. The combination of business training and personal contact with the players, coaches, and graduates cannot be found in any other department of the University. That this opportunity has been realized is brought out by the fact that in past years there have been sometimes half as many candidates for the Freshman Football Managership as there have been for the Freshman Football Team itself.

The system of managerships is carried out probably more extensively at Harvard than at any other college in the East. Not only are there competitions during the Sophomore year from which the man who will eventually be manager is chosen, but there are also Freshmen competitions from which the managers of the Freshmen teams are chosen. All competitions are open to all those who wish to enter. There are no elections or appointments of candidates, and the final decision in the competition is made only by those who are concerned with the candidates' managerial ability, and not by popular vote.

As has been said above, the man who eventually becomes manager is chosen by competition in the Sophomore year. These competitions are called Second Assistant Manager Competitions, the winner receiving the position of Second Assistant Manager his Sophomore year, Assistant manager his Junior year, and Manager his Senior year. Only in the case of unsatisfactory service does the winner of the competition fail to become Varsity Manager.

The leaders in the Freshmen Competitions receive the positions of Manager, Assistant Manager, and Second Assistant Managers of the Freshman team. These Freshmen competitions are related to the Second Assistant competitions only in that they give training and experience. A Second Assistant Candidate who has not had the experience of the Freshman Competition is at a great disadvantage, but on the other hand a candidate who receives the Freshman managership does not necessarily win the Second Assistant's position. Both competitions are linked to a certain extent in as much as they are both under the direction of the Varsity Manager and Assistant Manager, and are carried on in most sports at the same time.

The competitions of each sport have individual characteristics which can easily be shown by the following tabular summary:

Sport	Competition	Time of Year	Length	Positions
Football	Freshman	Fall	6 weeks	Manager Asst. Manager 2nd Asst. Manager 3 Dorm. Managers
Football	2nd Asst.	Spring and Fall	12 weeks	2nd Asst. Manager 2nd Asst. Mgr. 2nd team
Hockey	Freshman	Winter	6 weeks	Manager, Asst. Manager 2nd Asst. Manager

Digitized by Google

Sport	Competition	Time of Year	Length	Positions
Hockey	2nd Asst.	Winter	8 weeks	2nd Asst. Manager 2nd Asst. Mgr. 2nd team
Track	Freshman	Fall or Winter	8 weeks	Manager, Asst. Manager
Track	2nd Asst.	Spring	10 weeks	2nd Asst. Manager Asst. Mgr. Cross Country
Crew	Freshman	Spring	8 weeks	Manager, Asst. Manager Spring Regatta Comm.
Crew	2nd Asst.	Fall	8 weeks	2nd Asst. Manager
Baseball	Freshman	Early Spring	6 weeks	Manager, Asst. Manager 2nd Asst. Manager
Baseball	2nd Asst.	Late Spring	6 weeks	2nd Asst. Manager 2nd Asst. Mgr. 2nd team

The 2nd Assistant Football Manager competition which appears to be the longest really amounts to two competitions. The work in the Spring which is light work is used to choose from four to ten candidates who are allowed to compete in the fall.

The Freshman Manager and Assistant Manager in Crew are taken to Red Top, a thing which gives extra incentive in that competition.

The competitions in the minor sports are run on very much the same basis, but of course require much less time and less work. The minor sports which run competitions are Basketball, Lacrosse, Soccer, Squash, Swimming, Tennis and Wrestling.

During the past year attempts have been made to increase the efficiency of managerial work in such a way that the managers may have more time for study. A rating system similar to that used in the army has been instituted with the hope that physical work will be less emphasized and executive ability made of more account. As this system is being tried for the first time it is difficult to tell how much influence it can have on the situation.

RULES GOVERNING THE WEARING OF INSIGNIA

The undergraduate members of the Athletic Committee constitute a special committee on uniforms and insignia. Such changes or action as they recommend shall be submitted to the Committee for approval.

No student shall use the letter "H" in such a way as to appear to be a member of a Harvard team except in accordance with the following rules:

In Football, those who as members of a University team have taken part in a game with Yale.

In Crew, those who as members of a University eight or a University four have taken part in a race with Yale, and those who as Seniors, or for two years, have taken part as members of the second University eight in a race with Yale.

In Baseball, those who as members of a University team have taken part in a game with Yale.

In Hockey, those who as members of a University team have taken part in a game with Yale.

Such substitutes on the baseball, football, and hockey teams, and on the crew, as shall be designated by their Captain and approved by the Graduate Treasurer may use the letters "H A A".

In Track, those who as members of a University team have won a point in the Intercollegiate Games or the Dual Meet with Yale.

In Cross Country, those who have finished third or better in the Dual Cross Country Run with Yale, or seventh or better in the Intercollegiate Cross Country Run.

Those competing in these track games as members of a University team shall be entitled to use the letters "H A A".

In Tennis, any representative of the University who has won the Intercollegiate Championship in singles or doubles.

In Golf, any representative of the University who has won the Intercollegiate Championship.

The "H" may be awarded to any candidate for a University team by a vote of the Committee upon the recommendation of the Captain.

The "H" may be awarded to any Coach or Trainer of a University team by a vote of the Committee.

The "H-2nd" shall be awarded to such members of the second football, baseball, and hockey teams as may be determined by the Committee on the recommendation of the University Captain and the Head Coach of the second team.

Digitized by Google

Insignia shall be awarded to such members of other University teams as may be determined by the Committee upon recommendation of the University Captain.

Class numerals are awarded as follows:

In Football, a man must play on a Freshman team against Yale or on a class team winning the interclass championship.

In Track, a man must win a place in the Freshman meet with Yale, or in the interclass games, or one of the first three places in the Freshman cross-country race with Yale; or run in a winning Freshman relay team against Yale.

In Crew, a man must go to Red Top with the Freshman crew squad or row on a class crew winning the interclass Championship. (Freshman crews are not considered in awarding numerals for interclass championships.)

In Baseball, a man must play on a Freshman team against Yale.

In Hockey, a man must play on a Freshman team against Yale.

The Freshman Managers in major sports, and, in Crew, the Assistant Manager, get their numerals.

Class numerals may be awarded in other branches of sport by vote of the Committee.

The following are the official colors adopted for insignia:

Football — black sweater with a red "H".

Baseball — red sweater with a black "H".

Crew — white sweater with a red "H".

Track — red sweater with a white "H".

Hockey — black sweater with a red "H" bordered with white.

These colors shall apply where the "H-2nd" or "H A A" is used.

Association Football — white sweater with red "H A F".

Basketball — black sweater with red "H B B".

Fencing — white sweater with red "H F T".

Golf — black sweater with red "H G T". Winners of the Intercollegiate Championship wear a black sweater with a white "H" bordered with red.

Gymnastics — white sweater with red "H G T".

Lacrosse — black sweater with red "H" and crossed lacrosse sticks. Members of a championship team wear a white sweater with red insignia.

Rifle — black sweater with red "H R T".

Squash Racquets — white sweater with red "H S R".

Swimming — white sweater with red "H S T".

Tennis — white sweater with red and black "H T T". Winners of the Intercollegiate Championship wear a white sweater with a red "H" bordered with black.

Wrestling — white with red "H W T".

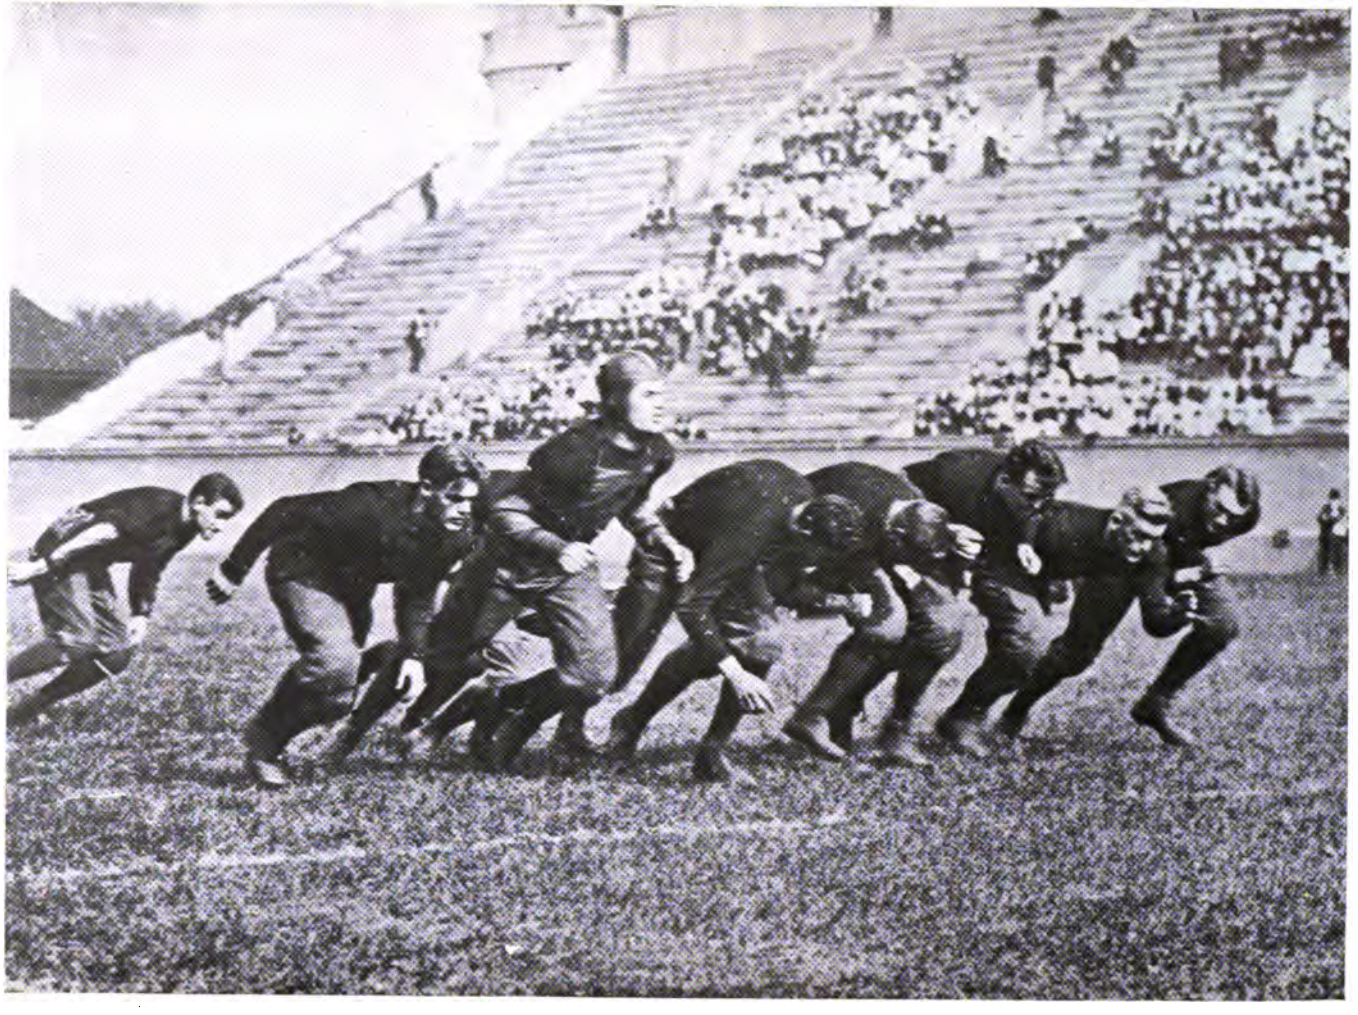

The colors for the class insignia are the same, substituting numerals for the "H".

Captain R. Keith Kane '22 prepared for college at St. George's School. Owing to the war, there was no 1922 Freshman football, but Kane played a stellar game at tackle on the University team in 1919. The following year he was shifted to end, where he played throughout the season. After the 9–0 victory over Yale he was elected captain for 1921, and is again playing at end.

Captain Arthur J. Conlon, Jr. '22, prepared for college at Exeter. He was captain and short-stop on his Freshman team which was victorious over Yale, 3–0. As a Sophomore he played the same position on the winning University team. In the autumn of 1920 he was captain and quarterback of the University Second Football team, and in the spring he again filled the short-stop's position on the baseball team. His brilliant work had much to do with the 16–4 victory over Yale, and resulted in his election as captain for 1922.

CAPTAIN LOUIS B. MCCAGG, JR., '22

Captain Louis B. McCagg, Jr. '22 prepared for college at St. Paul's School, Concord, N. H. He was captain and rowed at number six on the 1922 Freshman Crew which defeated Yale by a length. In his Sophomore year he rowed in the same position on the victorious University crew. He was captain of the 1921 University crew which lost to Yale by three-quarters of a length, and was re-elected for the 1922 season.

COACH WILLIAM HAINES

Coach William Haines came to Harvard in the fall of 1915 and working the following spring with Robert F. Herrick '90 developed the famous 1916 University crew which defeated Yale and broke the record for the New London course, covering the four miles in 20 minutes and 2 seconds. Since the war his crews have won once and lost two races to Yale, the 1920 crew crossing the line eight lengths in the lead. Before coming to Harvard, Mr. Haines had a brilliant record as an oarsman and coach in England and Germany.

Captain George Owen, Jr. '23 prepared for Harvard at Newton High School, where he was a prominent athlete. In his Freshman year in college he won his numerals in football, hockey, and baseball, being the highest point scorer on each of these teams. He was captain of the hockey team, and Vice-President of his class. In his Sophomore year he won his "H" in each of these sports, and at the conclusion of the hockey season was elected Captain for 1921–22. He plays the position of cover-point.

Captain J. Fiske Brown '22 prepared for Harvard at Andover where he was a member of the football, track and wrestling teams. He was a member of the Freshman track team and was Freshman Wrestling Captain.

During the fall last year he won his letter in football, playing at guard, which position he is again filling as a first string man. Last spring he developed into one of the best hammer throwers in the country, taking his event in several meets and culminating the season by defeating the Oxford-Cambridge weight-men with a throw of 159 feet. He was elected Track Captain to fill the vacancy left by the graduation of Captain Tolbert.

CAPTAIN J. FISKE BROWN, '22

CAPTAIN WILLIAM J. BINGHAM, '16

Coach William J. Bingham '16 entered Harvard from Exeter, where he had been Track captain in his Senior year. He made an enviable record in college, his specialty being the half mile run. He holds the Harvard record of 1 minute, 52⅖ seconds for this event, made against Yale when he was captain of the 1916 University team. He also ran on the University Relay teams. In the spring of 1921 Bingham was appointed University Coach, and was largely instrumental in developing the team that won from Princeton, 59–58, and barely lost first place in the Intercollegiate Games by half a point.

DIRECTORY OF STUDENTS IN THE UNIVERSITY AND INDEX OF THEIR COLLEGE ACTIVITIES

The italic letter or letters following the name indicate in what department or school the student is enrolled:—And., Andover; B, Bussey Institution; B. U., Boston University School of Theology; Dn, Dental School; Dv, Divinity School; E.S., Engineering School; E.T.S., Episcopal Theological School; G, Graduate School of Arts and Sciences; G.B., Graduate School of Business Administration; L, Law School; M, Medical School; N.T.I., Newton Theological Institution; S.A., School of Architecture; S.L.A., School of Landscape Architecture.

The numbers 1, 2, 3, and 4, preceding these letters, indicate the first, second, third, and fourth years in the Schools. Sp means special student; g, graduate student; u, unclassified student; ocC, candidate for Bachelor's degree, out of course.

Addresses followed by an asterisk (*) are in Boston; all others are in Cambridge, unless stated to be elsewhere. It will be noticed that the number precedes the name of a street, but follows the name of a building. Telephone numbers are understood to be listed under the University exchange unless otherwise stated.

Names of buildings are abbreviated as follows:—A., Andover Building; C't., Conant Hall; D., Divinity Hall; G., Grays Hall; Gnt., Gannett House; H., Hollis Hall; H'ke, Holyoke House; H'y, Holworthy Hall; M., Matthews Hall; P., Perkins Hall; S., Stoughton Hall; T., Thayer Hall; W., Weld Hall; W. H., Walter Hastings Hall.

The Freshman Dormitories are abbreviated as follows:—Go., Gore Hall; G.S., George Smith Hall; J. S., James Smith Hall; P. S., Persis Smith Hall; Sd., Standish Hall.

Names of places are abbreviated as follows:—B'kline = Brookline; Ch's'n = Charlestown; Dor. = Dorchester; Jam. Pl. = Jamaica Plain; Rox. = Roxbury; Somer. = Somerville.
